THE CHRONICLE OF HIGHER EDUCATION

Use of Free Textbooks Is Rising, but Barriers Remain

By Beth McMurtrie DECEMBER 19, 2017

A growing number of professors are replacing the traditional textbook with an openly licensed one, according to a survey released on Tuesday. But their overall numbers remain small — and widespread adoption of the practice could remain out of reach unless key barriers are overcome.

“Opening the Textbook: Educational Resources in U.S. Higher Education, 2017,” surveyed 2,700 full- and part-time faculty members to measure, among other things, their use of open educational resources, commonly called OER. It is the third such survey produced by the Babson Survey Research Group in recent years.

Over that time the share of faculty members adopting open-licensed textbooks rose from 5 percent in 2015 to 9 percent today, with a higher rate of use in large introductory-level classes. Familiarity with openly licensed materials is

The National Survey of Campus Centers for Teaching and Learning 2015

www.campuscomputing.net

- Many Centers are new: a third were formed after 2010
- Most Center directors have academic backgrounds and many have also have (full-time or part- time) faculty status
- Most Centers report to provosts and academic affairs offices
- Digital course resources (OER, Third-party software), adaptive learning, and competency-based learning appear to be low priorities for most Centers
- Pre-tenured faculty are the largest group of Center clients.
- Not much collaboration with academic departments and other campus units

Assessment of Teaching

In this course I have learned:

- ☐ Much less than in most courses I've taken
- ☐ Somewhat less than in most courses I've taken
- ☐ About the same as in most courses I've taken
- ☒ Somewhat more than in most courses I've taken
- ☐ Much more than in most courses I've taken

The grade I expect in this course is:

- ☐ A
- ☐ B
- ☐ C
- ☐ D
- ☐ F
- ☐ Other

Organizational Models – Where do we fit?

No “right way”
Cultural Fit
Changes over time

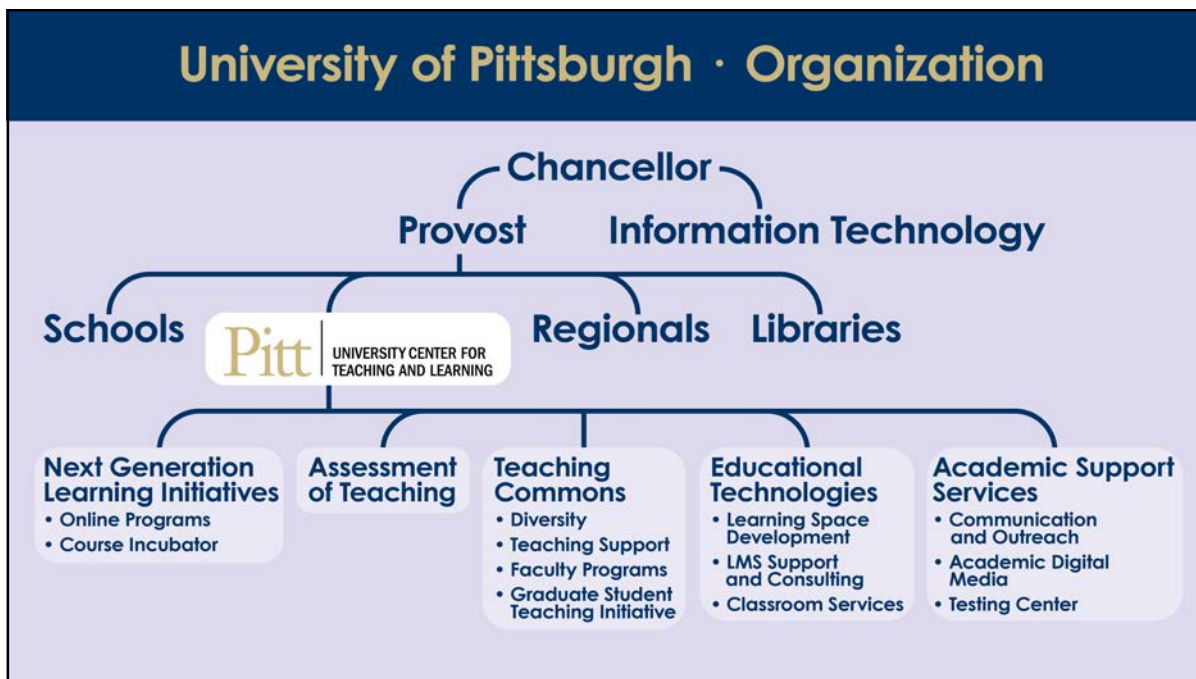

What I know...

- Support for good teaching must be the primary focus
- Technology is an enabler
- We can no longer separate the technology from the pedagogy
 - Necessary for good faculty support
 - Critical in the hiring process
- An integrated (pedagogy & ed tech) model works well for Pitt

MAJOR RECOMMENDATION : Connect the (academic) dots:

- 80% of the Centers report to provosts and academic affairs
- 57% of Center directors have an academic background
- 63% of Center directors have some kind of academic appointment Center directors report low engagement with academic units

Engage with provosts to stand up and stand with Center directors as a key strategy to promote innovation

Highlights:

- Pitt has the highest in-state tuition in the country for public universities.
- Students take on additional debt to pay for textbooks, or
- Students “undercut their own learning” by not purchasing textbooks.
- Pitt “should do everything in its power to control the cost of higher education”.
- This resolution calls on faculty to expand use of OER, admin to support with grants and incentives, the library to help with resources, and the government to support the Affordable College Textbook Act.
